Creams of the Crop

We're a little too old to believe in magic, but these potion picks from local skincare know-it-alls definitely lend a little abracadabra to dull skin. On the other hand, it is a little odd that gals are falling so hard for a manly product. So maybe there is a little magic involved after all.

NOEVIR

Hand-picked Turkish roses, Vitamin A and a trademarked 40-nanometer direct delivery system make Speciale Cream sound better suited for Bond than for beauty, but the Japanese brand's indulgent formula promises results in every worry area under the sun. And you can get it (and an up-close skin assessment and facial) on your home turf; the U.S. outpost is in Irvine. $850, 800.872.8817.
